COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

INTRODUCTION

1
2 1. Ensuring women access to preventive health care, including contraception, is a key 3 element in shaping women's overall health and well-being, and is therefore a critical component 4 of the State's public health programs. Contraceptives are among the most widely used medical 5 services in the United States and are much less costly than maternal deliveries for patients, 6 insurers, employers and states, and consequently the use of contraceptives has been shown to 7 result in net savings to women and their employers. Starting in 2012, as part of the Patient 8 Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA), most group health insurance plans had to cover all 9 Food and Drug Administration (FDA)-approved contraceptive methods without cost-sharing for 10 beneficiaries. 45 C.F.R. § 147.130(a)(1)(iv); 29 C.F.R. § 2590.715-2713(a)(1)(iv); 26 C.F.R.
11 § 54.9815-2713(a)(1)(iv). Since this contraceptive-coverage requirement took effect, women 12 have saved $1.4 billion.

13 2. On October 6, 2017, the U.S. Health and Human Services (HHS), in conjunction with 14 the U.S. Department of Labor and U.S. Department of the Treasury, issued two illegal interim 15 final rules (IFRs), 2017-21851 and 2017-21852. The IFRs drastically change access to 16 contraceptive coverage by expanding the scope of the religious exemption to, among other things, 17 allow any employer or health insurer with religious or moral objections to opt out of the 18 contraceptive-coverage requirement with no assurances that the federal government will provide 19 critical oversight to ensure coverage. Unlike the prior regulations, the IFRs guarantee that there is 20 no longer an automatic seamless mechanism for women to continue to receive contraceptive 21 coverage if their employer opts out. Further, under this new regime, there is not even a 22 requirement that the employer notify the federal government of a decision to stop providing 23 contraceptive coverage. Therefore, millions of women in California may be left without access to 24 contraceptives and counseling and the State will be shouldering that additional fiscal and 25 administrative burden as women seek access for this coverage through state-funded programs.

26 3. The State of California, by and through Attorney General Xavier Becerra, challenges 27 the illegal IFRs and seeks an injunction to prevent the IFRs from taking effect because the 28 regulations violate the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), the Establishment Clause of the First

1 Amendment, and the Equal Protection Clause of the Fifth Amendment. Furthermore, the 2 issuance of the IFRs will have immediate and irreparable harm on the State.

3 JURISDICTION AND VENUE

4 4. This Court has jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (action arising under the 5 laws of the United States), 28 U.S.C. § 1361 (action to compel officer or agency to perform duty 6 owed to Plaintiff), and 5 U.S.C. §§ 701-706 (Administrative Procedure Act). An actual 7 controversy exists between the parties within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a), and this Court 8 may grant declaratory relief, injunctive relief, and other relief pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201-9 2202 and 5 U.S.C. §§ 705-706.

10 5. Defendants' issuance of the IFRs on October 6, 2017, constitutes a final agency 11 action and is therefore judicially reviewable within the meaning of the Administrative Procedure 12 Act. 5 U.S.C. §§ 704, 706.

13 6. Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e) because this is a 14 judicial district in which the State of California resides and this action seeks relief against federal 15 agencies and officials acting in their official capacities.

16 INTRADISTRICT ASSIGNMENT

17 7. Pursuant to Civil Local Rules 3-5(b) and 3-2(c), there is no basis for assignment of 18 this action to any particular location or division of this Court.

19 PARTIES

20 8. Plaintiff, the State of California, by and through Attorney General Xavier Becerra, 21 brings this action. The Attorney General is the chief law enforcement officer of the State and has 22 the authority to file civil actions in order to protect public rights and interests. Cal. Const., art. V, 23 § 13. This challenge is brought pursuant to the Attorney General's independent constitutional, 24 statutory, and common law authority to represent the public interest.

25 9. The State of California has an interest in ensuring women's health care is both 26 available and accessible. Health care is one of the police powers of the States. California relies 27 on Defendants' compliance with the procedural and substantive requirements of the APA in order 28 to obtain timely and accurate information about activities that may have significant adverse

1 impacts on access to health care, including contraceptive coverage, and to meaningfully 2 participate in an impartial and public decision-making process that is consistent with the scope of 3 the Affordable Care Act's requirements of free contraceptive coverage.

4 10. California is aggrieved by the actions of Defendants and has standing to bring this 5 action because of the injury to its state sovereignty caused by Defendants' issuance of the illegal 6 IFRs, including immediate and irreparable injuries to its sovereign, quasi-sovereign, and 7 proprietary interests. In particular, California will suffer concrete and substantial harm because 8 the IFRs frustrate California's public health interests by curtailing women's access to 9 contraceptive care through employer-sponsored health insurance, and will burden the State with 10 increased costs of providing contraceptive coverage and costs resulting from unintended 11 pregnancies.¹

12 11. Defendant Don. J. Wright is Acting Secretary of HHS and is sued in his official 13 capacity. Acting Secretary Wright has responsibility for implementing and fulfilling HHS's 14 duties under the Constitution, the ACA, and the APA.

15 12. Defendant HHS is an agency of the United States government and bears 16 responsibility, in whole or in part, for the acts complained of in this Complaint. The Centers for 17 Medicare and Medicaid Services is an entity within the HHS.

18 13. Defendant R. Alexander Acosta is Secretary of the U.S. Department of Labor and is 19 sued in his official capacity. Secretary Acosta has responsibility for implementing and fulfilling 20 the U.S. Department of Labor's duties under the Constitution, the ACA, and the APA.

21 14. Defendant U.S. Department of Labor is an agency of the United States government 22 and bears responsibility, in whole or in part, for the acts complained of in this Complaint. The 23 Employee Benefits Security Administration is an entity within the U.S. Department of Labor.

24 15. Defendant Steven Mnuchin is Secretary of the U.S. Department of the Treasury and is 25 sued in his official capacity. Secretary Mnuchin has responsibility for implementing and 26

27 ¹ Though this complaint focuses on how the IFRs target women, the IFRs also may affect 28 people who do not identify as women, including some gender non-confirming people and some transgender men.

1 fulfilling the U.S. Department of the Treasury's duties under the Constitution, the ACA, and the 2 APA.

3 16. Defendant U.S. Department of the Treasury is an agency of the United States 4 government and bears responsibility, in whole or in part, for the acts complained of in this 5 Complaint. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is an entity within the U.S. Department of the 6 Treasury.

7 STATUTORY BACKGROUND

8 I. THE PATIENT PROTECTION AND AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

9 17. The ACA requires that certain group health insurance plans cover preventive care and 10 screenings without imposing costs on the employee and his/her covered dependents. 42 U.S.C.
11 § 300gg-13(a). Importantly, this includes women's "preventive care and screenings . . . as 12 provided for in comprehensive guidelines supported by the Health Resources and Services 13 Administration." 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-13(a)(4). During the 2009 debates leading up to the ACA's 14 passage, the United States Congress specifically proposed an amendment to require health plans 15 to cover comprehensive women's preventive care and screenings. This amendment, which came 16 to be called the Women's Health Amendment, relied on guidelines developed by the independent, 17 nonpartisan Institute of Medicine (IOM) and adopted by the HHS. It required coverage for 18 "preventive care and screenings" for women to ensure "essential protections for women's access 19 to preventive health care not currently covered in other prevention section of the [ACA]."

20 18. The IOM assembled a diverse, expert committee to draft a report to determine what 21 should be included in cost-free "preventive care" coverage for women. The report underwent 22 rigorous, independent external review prior to its release.

23 19. On or about July 19, 2011, the IOM issued its expert report which included a 24 comprehensive set of eight evidence-based recommendations for strengthening preventive health 25 care services. Specifically, the IOM recommended that private health insurance plans be required 26 to cover all contraceptive benefits and services approved by the FDA without cost-sharing (also 27 known as out-of-pocket costs such as deductibles and copays).
28

1 20. These IOM recommendations, developed after an exhaustive review of the medical 2 and scientific evidence, were intended to fill important gaps in coverage. The recommendations 3 include coverage for an annual well-woman preventive care visit, specific services for pregnant 4 women and nursing mothers, counseling and screening for HIV and domestic violence, as well as 5 services for the early detection of reproductive cancers and sexually transmitted infections.
6 Significantly, the recommendations include coverage of the full range of all FDA-approved 7 contraceptive methods, sterilization procedures, and patient education and counseling for all 8 women with reproductive capacity. The IOM acknowledged the reality that cost can be a 9 daunting barrier for women when it comes to choosing and using the most effective contraceptive 10 method. For instance, certain highly-effective contraceptive methods, such as the intrauterine 11 device and the implant, have high up-front costs, which act as a barrier to access despite the fact 12 that these contraceptives are long-acting and 99 percent effective. The IOM considers these 13 services essential so that “women can better avoid unwanted pregnancies and space their 14 pregnancies to promote optimal birth outcomes.”

15 21. Thus, the IOM recommended that “preventive care” include not only contraceptive 16 coverage such as access to all FDA-approved contraceptives but also counseling and education to 17 ensure that women were receiving information on the best method for their individual set of 18 circumstances.

19 22. Following the IOM’s recommendations relating to contraceptive coverage, HHS, the 20 U.S. Department of Labor, and the U.S. Department of the Treasury promulgated regulations 21 requiring that group health insurance plans cover all FDA-approved contraceptive methods 22 without cost to women and their covered dependents. 45 C.F.R. § 147.130(a)(1)(iv); 29 C.F.R.
23 § 2590.715-2713(a)(1)(iv); 26 C.F.R. § 54.9815-2713(a)(1)(iv).

24 23. In implementing this statutory scheme, HHS made clear that these coverage 25 requirements were not applicable to group health plans sponsored by religious employers.
26 Further, HHS made available to health plans a religious accommodation to employers who seek 27 to not provide this coverage. Through this religious accommodation, the federal government 28 ensured that women had access to seamless contraceptive coverage as entitled under the ACA,

1 while also providing employers with a mechanism to opt-out of providing or paying for this 2 coverage.

3 24. In order to effectuate this policy, the Health Resources and Services Administration 4 (HRSA) issued guidelines implementing the IOM's expert report's recommendations. These 5 guidelines ensure that women receive a comprehensive set of preventive services without having 6 to pay a co-payment, co-insurance, or a deductible.

7 25. HRSA's comprehensive guidelines included a list of each type of preventive service, 8 and the frequency with which that service should be offered. Under the guidelines, HHS 9 recognized that well-woman visits should be conducted annually for adult women to obtain the 10 recommended preventive services that are age- and development-appropriate, including 11 preconception care and many services necessary for prenatal care. HRSA recognized that the 12 well-woman health screening should occur at least on an annual basis, but also noted that several 13 visits may be needed to obtain all necessary recommended preventive services, depending on a 14 woman's health status, health needs, and other risk factors. HRSA's guidelines also included 15 annual counseling on sexually transmitted infections for all sexually active women, annual 16 counseling and screening for human immunodeficiency virus infection for all sexually active 17 women, all FDA-approved contraceptive methods, sterilization procedures, and patient education 18 and counseling for all women with reproductive capacity. These guidelines ensured that women 19 could access a comprehensive set of preventive services without having to pay a co-payment, co-20 insurance, or a deductible to ensure there was no cost barrier.

21 26. In March 2016, HRSA awarded a five-year cooperative agreement to the American 22 Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) to update the women preventive services 23 guidelines originally recommended by IOM and work to develop additional recommendations to 24 enhance women's overall health. In that same month, ACOG launched the "Women's Preventive 25 Services Initiative" (WPSI), which was a multidisciplinary steering committee headed by ACOG 26 to update the eight IOM recommendations from 2011. Through this initiative, ACOG partnered 27 with the American Academy of Family Physicians, the American College of Physicians, and the 28 National Association of Nurse Practitioners in Women's Health to achieve this goal. The WPSI

1 issued draft recommendations for public comments in September of 2016 and the updated 2 “Women’s Preventive Service Guidelines” were finalized and implemented by HRSA on 3 December 20, 2016 to take effect December 20, 2017. Importantly, these expert, evidence-based 4 medical recommendations continued to include coverage of all FDA-approved contraceptive 5 methods and counseling for women with reproductive capacity, underscoring their importance to 6 women.

7 II. ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE ACT

8 27. Pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), 5 U.S.C. § 551 et seq., a 9 reviewing court shall “(1) compel agency action unlawfully withheld or unreasonably delayed; 10 and (2) hold unlawful and set aside agency action, findings, and conclusions found to 11 be ...arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, otherwise not in accordance with law; [or] 12 without observance of procedure required by law.” 5 U.S.C. § 706. The APA defines “agency 13 action” to include “the whole or a part of an agency rule, order, license, sanction, relief, or the 14 equivalent or denial thereof, or failure to act.” Id. § 551(13) (emphasis added); see id. § 551(6) 15 (defining “order” to mean “the whole or a part of a final disposition, whether affirmative, 16 negative, injunctive, or declaratory in form, of an agency in a matter other than rule making but 17 including licensing”).

18 FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

19 I. CONTRACEPTIVE COVERAGE

20 28. Contraceptives are among the most widely used medical products in the United 21 States, with 99 percent of sexually active women having used at least one type of contraception in 22 her lifetime. By the age of 40, American women have used an average of three or four different 23 methods (some of which are available only by prescription), after considering their relative 24 effectiveness, side effects, drug interactions and hormones, the frequency of sexual conduct, 25 perceived risk of sexually transmitted infections, the desire for control, and a host of other factors.
26 Of course, women face the possibility of having children for many years of their life and therefore 27 if a woman only wants two children, for instance, she would need to spend roughly three decades 28 on birth control to avoid unintended pregnancies. Due to the positive impact of contraception for

1 women and society, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention concluded that family 2 planning, including access to modern contraception, was one of the ten greatest achievements of 3 the 20th Century. Further, one-third of the wage gains women have made since the 1960s are the 4 result of access to oral contraceptives. Access to birth control has helped narrow the wage gap 5 between women and men. The decrease in the wage gap among 25 to 49-year-olds between 6 men's and women's annual incomes would have been 10 percent smaller in the 1980s and 30 7 percent smaller in the 1990s in the absence of widespread legal birth control access for women.

8 29. Contraceptives are much less costly than maternal deliveries for states, insurers, 9 employers, and patients, and consequently, they have been shown to result in net savings to 10 women and ultimately employers. The ACA's requirement to cover contraception benefits and 11 services has saved American women $1.4 billion since the law took effect in 2012. For instance, 12 the share of women of reproductive age who had out-of-pocket spending on oral contraceptive 13 pills fell sharply after the ACA; spending on oral contraceptive pills plummeted from 20.9 14 percent in 2012 to 3.6 percent in 2014, corresponding to the timing of the ACA provision. To 15 date, over 62.4 million women have benefited from this coverage, including 13 million in 16 California. Although both men and women benefit from access to safe and reliable contraceptive 17 care, women disproportionately bear the cost of obtaining contraceptives. This is in part because, 18 of the FDA-approved methods of contraceptives, only two—male sterilization surgery and male 19 condoms—are available for use by men. The methods of contraception at issue in this matter are 20 only available for women.

21 30. This savings to women has a corresponding fiscal impact on society, including to the 22 State of California. The ACA's contraceptive-coverage requirement decreases the number of 23 unintended pregnancies, and thereby the costs associated with those pregnancies. Furthermore, 24 unintended pregnancy is associated with poor birth outcomes and maternal health issues, and 25 thus, the contraceptive-coverage requirement also reduces the number of high-costs births and 26 infants born in poor health.

1 31. In California, 48 percent of all pregnancies were unintended in 2010. Of those 2 unplanned pregnancies that resulted in births, 64.3 percent were publicly funded, costing 3 California $689.3 million on unintended pregnancies.

4 32. In 2014, the California Legislature passed the Contraceptive Equity Act of 2014 (SB 5 1053), which requires certain health plans to cover certain prescribed FDA-approved 6 contraceptives for women without cost-sharing. Twenty-seven other states have similar 7 contraceptive equity laws, aimed at making contraception cheaper and more accessible.

8 33. In passing the Contraceptive Equity Act, the California Legislature concluded that 9 providing contraception will result in overall savings in the health care industry due to reduced 10 office visits, reduced unintended pregnancies, and therefore, reduced prenatal care, abortions, and 11 labor and delivery costs. In fact, the California Health Benefits Review Program (CHBRP) 12 anticipated that there would be substantial cost savings, including $213 million in savings to 13 private employers, $86 million in savings to individuals, and $7 million in savings to CalPERS.
14 CHBRP also anticipated a cost savings of $56 million for Medi-Cal managed care. In addition to 15 these fiscal benefits, there is huge benefit to California's public health. CHBRP estimated that 16 access to and increased contraceptive use under this act would result in 51,298 averted unintended 17 pregnancies, and among those averted, CHBRP estimated that 20,006 averted abortions.
18 Moreover, with the decrease in unintended pregnancies and abortions, there is a corresponding 19 decrease in the risk of maternal mortality, adverse child outcomes, behavior problems in children, 20 and negative psychological outcomes associated with unintended pregnancies for both mothers 21 and children. Significantly, access to contraceptive coverage helps women to delay childbearing 22 and pursue additional education, spend additional time in their careers, and have increased 23 earning power over the long-term.

24 34. California's Contraceptive Equity Act, however, only applies to state-regulated health 25 plans. It does not apply to self-funded health plans, through which 61 percent of covered workers 26 are insured. Self-funded health plans are governed by the Federal Employee Retirement Income 27 Security Act of 1974 and are regulated by the U.S. Department of Labor, Employee Benefits 28 Security Administration.

1 35. The California Health Care Foundation estimates that as of 2015, 6.6 million 2 Californians were covered by a self-funded employer health plan. Therefore, the IFRs could 3 affect over 6 million California women. These women will be left unprotected and the IFRs 4 threaten California's ability to guarantee health and welfare to its residents by a virtual denial of 5 free access to contraceptive coverage to women.

6 36. In California, if women do not receive cost-free contraceptive coverage from their 7 employer, California risks having to absorb the financial and administrative burden of ensuring 8 access to contraceptive coverage. Due to the IFRs, California women will be forced to utilize the 9 state's Family Planning, Access, Care, and Treatment (Family PACT) program provided they 10 meet certain eligibility requirements. Family PACT is administered by the Office of Family 11 Planning (OFP), an entity within the California Department of Health Care Services, which is 12 charged by the California Legislature to make available to citizens of the State who are of 13 childbearing age comprehensive medical knowledge, assistance, and services relating to the 14 planning of families. Family planning allows women to decide for themselves the number, 15 timing, and spacing of their children.

16 37. Family PACT is available to eligible low-income (under 200 percent of federal 17 poverty level) men and women who are residents of the California. Currently, the program serves 18 1.1 million eligible men and women of childbearing age through a network of 2,200 public and 19 private providers. Services include comprehensive education, assistance, and services relating to 20 family planning. These Californians have no other source of health care coverage for family 21 planning services (or they meet the criteria specified for eligibility with Other Health Coverage) 22 and they have a medical necessity for family planning services.

23 38. The 2,200 clinic and private practice clinician provider entities enroll women in 24 Family PACT across the state. Family PACT clinician providers include private physicians in 25 nonprofit community-based clinics, obstetricians and gynecologists, general practice physicians, 26 family practice, internal medicine, and pediatrics. Medi-Cal licensed pharmacies and laboratories 27 also participate by referrals from enrolled Family PACT clinicians.
28

39. Planned Parenthood is one example of a Family PACT provider that enrolls women into the program. Planned Parenthood currently serves approximately 850,000 patients a year through 115 health centers. California reimburses Planned Parenthood for family planning services provided. For every dollar Planned Parenthood spends on family planning services, the federal government contributes 77.49 cents while the state spends 22.51 cents.

40. Because health facilities, including but not limited to Planned Parenthood, will likely see a spike in patients seeking contraceptive coverage, California will be fiscally impacted through increased enrollment in Family PACT.

II. PRIOR REGULATORY FRAMEWORK PROVIDING ACA CONTRACEPTIVE-COVERAGE REQUIREMENT EXCEPT IN NARROWLY TAILORED CIRCUMSTANCES

41. In enacting and implementing the ACA, both Congress and HHS contemplated laws protecting religious exercise. To that end, the ACA requires no-cost coverage of women's preventive health care, with some narrowly tailored exceptions for those employers that objected to providing their employees with contraceptives. The two exceptions originally implemented were for: (1) religious organizations and (2) nonprofits with religious objections. Specifically, in implementing the ACA, the regulations permit religious employers such as churches to seek an "exemption" from the contraceptive-coverage requirement. See 45 C.F.R. § 147.131(a) (current HHS regulation). Nonprofits with religious objections were also allowed to opt out of the contraceptive-coverage requirement via an "accommodation," by which the nonprofit employer certifies its objection and the insurer is then responsible for separate contraceptive coverage.

42. Following three rounds of notice-and-comment rulemaking to develop and refine regulations, generating hundreds of thousands of public comments, the federal government enacted this "accommodation" which furthers the compelling interest in ensuring that women covered by every type of health plan receive full and equal health coverage, including contraceptive coverage. At the same time, it ensures that objecting employers are not providing this coverage. Specifically, to obtain the "accommodation," an employer opted out by notifying its insurer using a written form certifying its religious objection and eligibility for the accommodation.

43. This process resulted in a relatively seamless mechanism for women, whose employers obtain the religious accommodation, to continue to receive their ACA contraceptive coverage not provided by the employer, and helped the government ensure that no woman was went without birth control as a result. See 80 FR 41318 (July 14, 2015) (current HHS regulation); 45 C.F.R. § 147.131(c)-(d) (current HHS regulation). This scheme ensured that those employees would not be adversely affected by their employers' decision to opt out. 45 C.F.R. § 147.131(c)-(d). At the same time, it likewise ensured that certain employers who had religious objections could avoid providing for or paying for this coverage. Thus, this scheme struck a good balance for both the employer and the employee.

44. The religious accommodation was later expanded to include certain closely-held for-profit organizations with religious objections to providing contraceptive care, consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Burwell v. Hobby Lobby Stores, Inc., 134 S. Ct. 2751 (2014); 80 FR 41318 (July 14, 2015); 45 C.F.R. § 147.131(b)(4). Further, in response to the Supreme Court, an organization may use an alternative process of providing notice of its religious objections to providing contraceptive services. Instead of filing a form with HHS or sending a copy of the executed form to its health insurance provider or third party administrator, the non-profit organization may use an alternate process to provide notice of its religious objection. It may simply notify HHS in writing of its objection to covering contraceptive coverage. Wheaton College v. Burwell, 134 S. Ct. 2806 (2014); 80 FR 41318.

III. NEW REGULATORY FRAMEWORK VASTLY EXPANDING THE ABILITY OF EMPLOYERS TO OPT-OUT OF PROVIDING COST-FREE CONTRACEPTIVE COVERAGE UNDER THE ACA

45. Without any notice, opportunity to comment, or evidence-based expert guidance, on October 6, 2017, Defendants promulgated sweeping new IFRs affecting women's access to cost-free contraceptive coverage. The IFRs fail to address the fact-finding underlying the prior regulations and rely on insufficient evidence.

46. Prior to promulgating the IFRs, Defendants failed to meet or convene publically any women's, medical, or public health organizations that emphasize access to health care. For

1 example, Defendants did not meet with the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American 2 Association of Family Physicians, the National Association of Nurse Practitioners in Women's 3 Health, the National Partnership for Women and Families, or the Planned Parenthood Federation
4 of America, among others. Instead, Defendants met with organizations like the Heritage 5 Foundation, Church Alliance, and the Ethics & Religious Liberty Commission of the Southern 6 Baptist Convention.

7 47. The new IFRs vastly expand the scope of entities that may be exempt from the 8 contraceptive-coverage requirement. They cast a wide net beyond religious organizations to any 9 individual, employer or insurer (regardless of corporate structure or religious affiliation), a step 10 that undermines the federally-backed religious accommodation, which balances the interest of 11 employers wishing to opt-out of providing contraception for employees while also ensuring 12 seamless access to care for women. Further, this exemption has been extended to not only a 13 religious objection, but also a new moral objection to all or a subset of the contraceptive-coverage 14 requirement.

15 48. The IFRs, thus, expand the Hobby Lobby decision to any business with a moral 16 objection against providing women access to contraceptive coverage, further frustrating the 17 scheme and purpose of the ACA.

18 49. Additionally, under the new IFRs, employers seeking to be exempt from providing 19 contraceptives do not need to certify any objection to the coverage requirement. Rather, the 20 employer can simply inform their employees they will no longer cover contraception benefits and 21 counseling as part of their employer health care coverage. This is a significant change. By 22 contrast, the prior federal regulations provided a process for women to receive their care as part of 23 the "religious accommodation," which also ensured that employers who religiously objected to 24 providing this coverage did not have to provide or pay for contraceptives. Under the previous 25 regime, the federal government acted as the guiding entity or the "back-stop" to ensure that there 26 was a balance between the compelling interest that all women have access to their federally 27 entitled benefit under the ACA, while also creating an accommodation for those employers that 28 sought not to provide this coverage. Under the new IFRs there is nothing in place to ensure that

1 women across the country, let alone California, continue to receive this federally entitled 2 coverage. Further, these new IFRs create an entirely new “moral exemption” standard, which 3 was not previously contemplated by the federal government. Employers can simply make use of 4 a religious or the new moral exemption, without informing the federal government, thereby 5 almost ensuring that female employees lose access to this federally entitled seamless 6 contraceptive access as contemplated by the ACA. Without the federal backstop or guidance over 7 a federal entitlement, these women will simply be left without contraceptive coverage and with 8 nowhere to go. The State of California will be forced to fill this gap.

9 50. In short, under the new IFRs, those exempted entities do not need to certify any 10 objection to the contraceptive-coverage requirement to the federal government, which all but 11 ensure that women across the country will go without birth control access as the ACA intended.

12 51. These IFRs could impact 6.6 million Californians who receive their health care 13 through a self-insured employer health plan, and therefore do not receive the benefit of 14 California’s Contraceptive Equity Act.

15 52. There are at least 25 California employers, with 54,879 employees who will likely 16 seek an exemption or accommodation. Thus, an unknown but substantial number of California 17 women will be affected by these IFRs, and under these new IFRs, California anticipates that this 18 number will vastly expand, eviscerating the ability of these women to access cost-free 19 contraceptive coverage through their health plan. Consequently, they will turn to publicly funded 20 clinics or California’s wrap-around family program, Family PACT, to obtain the contraceptive 21 coverage that is no longer being provided by employers or insurers, or being tracked by the 22 federal government to ensure women maintain access as envisioned by the ACA.

23 53. By promulgating the IFRs, California’s concrete interest in ensuring access to 24 contraceptive coverage is violated.

25 FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

26 (Violation of APA; 5 U.S.C. § 553)

27 54. Paragraphs 1 through 53 are realleged and incorporated herein by reference.
 28

55. The APA generally requires agencies to provide the public notice and an opportunity to be heard before promulgating a regulation. An agency wishing to promulgate a regulation must publish in the Federal Register a notice of proposed rulemaking that includes “(1) a statement of the time, place, and nature of public rule making proceedings; (2) reference to the legal authority under which the rule is proposed; and (3) either the terms or substance of the proposed rule or a description of the subjects and issues involved.” 5 U.S.C. § 553(b). After the notice has issued, “the agency shall give interested persons an opportunity to participate in the rulemaking through submission of written data, views, or arguments with or without opportunity for oral presentation.” Id. § 553(c).

56. In narrow circumstances, the APA exempts agencies from this notice and comment process where they can show “good cause” that the process would be either “impracticable, unnecessary, or contrary to the public interest.” Id. § 553(b)(B). The burden is on the agency to demonstrate good cause, and courts have interpreted the exception narrowly. See, e.g., Lake Carriers’ Ass’n v. EPA, 652 F.3d 1, 6 (D.C. Cir. 2011).

57. Defendants have not and cannot demonstrate good cause for failing to give any notice to the public or allowing for public comment prior to effectuating these new IFRs.

58. Notice and comment is particularly important in legally and factually complex circumstances like those presented here. Notice and comment allows affected parties—including states—to explain the practical effects of a rule before it is implemented, and ensures that the agency proceeds in a fully informed manner, exploring alternative, less harmful approaches. In the area of women’s health care, it is particularly important to have an adequate notice and comment given that women have been relying on this benefit since 2012.

59. Because Defendants failed to follow section 553’s notice and comment procedures, the regulations are invalid.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(Violation of APA; 5 U.S.C. § 706)

60. Paragraphs 1 through 59 are realleged and incorporated herein by reference.

61. The APA requires courts to “hold unlawful and set aside” agency action that is “(A) arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law; (B) contrary to constitutional right, power, privilege, or immunity; (C) in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations, or short of statutory right.”

62. By promulgating these new IFRs, without proper factual or legal basis, Defendants have acted arbitrarily and capriciously, have abused their discretion, have acted otherwise not in accordance with law, and have taken unconstitutional and unlawful action in violation of the APA. Defendants’ violation causes ongoing harm to California and its residents.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION (Violation of the Establishment Clause)

63. Paragraphs 1 through 62 are realleged and incorporated herein by reference.

64. The First Amendment provides that “Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.” U.S. Const., amend. I. “The clearest command of the Establishment Clause is that one religious denomination cannot be officially preferred over another.” Larson v. Valente, 456 U.S. 228, 244 (1982); see also McCreary County, Kentucky v. ACLU, 545 U.S. 844, 875 (2005) (“the government may not favor one religion over another, or religion over irreligion”).

65. The new IFRs privilege religious beliefs over secular beliefs as a basis for obtaining exemptions under the ACA.

66. In contrast, the prior regulations only allowed an exemption for churches and an accommodation for non-profits and closely-held for-profit companies with religious objections. This was narrowly tailored to accommodate religious beliefs and still provide essential women’s health care services.

67. By promulgating the new IFRs, Defendants have violated the Establishment Clause because the new IFRs goes too far in accommodating an employer’s religious objections to birth control, placing an undue burden on third parties – the women who seek birth control.

1 68. The new IFRs are not narrowly tailored and ignore the compelling interest of 2 seamless access to cost-free birth control. This crosses the line from acceptable accommodation 3 to religious endorsement.

4 69. Defendants' violation causes ongoing harm to California residents.

5 FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION
6 (Violation of the Equal Protection Clause)

7 70. Paragraphs 1 through 69 are realleged and incorporated herein by reference.

8 71. The Equal Protection Clause of the Fifth Amendment prohibits the federal 9 government from denying equal protection of the laws.

10 72. The new IFRs, together with statements made by Defendants concerning their intent 11 and application, target individuals for discriminatory treatment based on their gender, without 12 lawful justification.

13 73. The new IFRs specifically target and harm women. The ACA specifically 14 contemplated disparities in health care costs between women and men, and specifically sought to 15 rectify this problem by giving women cost-free preventive services. The new IFRs undermine 16 this action and is discriminatory to women.

17 74. By promulgating the new IFRs, Defendants have violated the equal protection 18 guarantee of the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

19 75. Defendants' violation causes ongoing harm to California residents.

20 PRAYER FOR RELIEF

21 WHEREFORE, the State of California, by and through Attorney General Xavier Becerra, 22 respectfully requests that this Court:

- 23 1. Issue a declaratory judgment that the IFRs are void for failing to comply with the notice 24 and comment requirements of the APA;
- 25 2. Issue a declaratory judgment that the IFRs are an unreasonable interpretation of the law;
- 26 3. Issue a declaratory judgment that the IFRs violate the Establishment Clause;
- 27 4. Issue a declaratory judgment that the IFRs violate the Equal Protection Clause;
- 28 5. Issue a preliminary injunction prohibiting the implementation of the IFRs;

6. Issue a mandatory injunction prohibiting the implementation of the IFRs;
7. Award Plaintiff costs, expenses, and reasonable attorneys' fees;
8. Award such other relief as the Court deems just and proper.

Dated: October 6, 2017
